Rustic charm and yesteryear worlds

If you want your wedding day to be truly unforgettable and full of charm, choose the extraordinary Ulster American Folk Park.

This is one venue with countless enchanting locations – an open air museum that brings to life the drama of centuries of Irish emigration. Take your guests to old and new worlds, from the thatched cottages of Ulster to the American frontier, across 60 acres of rolling countryside. Dramatic, historical backdrops for the most atmospheric of wedding celebrations. If you envisage a big day full of rustic charm, storytelling and outdoorsy natural beauty, this is the place for you...

Idyllic I do's

The Ulster American Folk Park has three unique locations for your magical and memorable I do's.

On the Ulster side of the Folk Park, there's the beautiful Tullyallen Mass House – a stunningly restored country church with a thatched roof, whitewashed walls and rough-hewn pews. The simple chandeliers and sun-flooded sash windows add all the ambience you'll need, but equally Tullyallen is a gorgeous blank canvas. And the brilliant green at the front is a photographer's dream.

Slightly smaller, but just as wonderfully charming, is Mountjoy Meeting House. This pretty little spot is teeming with period furniture and fittings and perfect for a more traditional service. Alternatively, opt for a beautiful civil service in Castletown School House – your guests can sit on school benches as you tie the knot in this little atmospheric building.

Afternoons in other worlds

After your declarations, your options are endless. The Ulster American Folk Park is a sensationally unconventional wedding location and a beautiful backdrop for a free-spirited, outdoorsy celebration.

Treat your guests to a wondrous wedding trail around the museum, meeting characters, making crafty love knots or raising a toast in O'Reilly's pub on the glorious Ulster Street. We'll help you create your dream itinerary of charming things for your guests to do. From crafts to quirky foods and costumed visitor guides, you can create a truly unforgettable wedding afternoon full of delights.
